THE CATHOLIC JUBILEE.

· Pope Plus the Ninth Completes His Pontifical Pledge.

"I Shall Not Die Until I Have Proclaimed the Jubilee."

The Encyclical Letter to the Pastors and the Universal Flock.

Discipline, Penance and the Remission of Sins.

[Rome (Jan. 3) correspondence of London Times.] When, in the spring of 1873, Plus IX. was laying upon a sick bed so grievously ill that the terminaof his eventful Pontificate was thought to be as hand he is said to have exclaimed, "I shall not die notil I have proclaimed the Jubilee." But in what sense was this exclamation to be taken ? Was it prophetic of the deliverance, so often predicted, being accomplished before Christmas, 1874, or was it merely indicative of his resolution to hold the Jubilee under any circumstances what-ever they might be? Ascension Day, when, according to custom, the buil of preparation should have been issued, passed no sign was made. Christmas Eve, on which each year of Jubilee commences with the breaking down of the Porta Santa, came, but the great vestibule, which under other circumstances would have been densely crowded with the faithful, from the visible head of the Church to the poorest pilgrim, was silent and deserted. Some, who erroneously thought that even Plus IX, might, perhaps, descend so far as to perform examine the inside of the door, but its jambs and lintels were entire; everything remained untouched, even to the web an overlooked spider and diligently span in the corner. There was HE 1850, was to pass unnoticed by the Church.

But Pius IX. has remained true to his words, suming, of course, the truth of those attributed to him, for on Christmas Eve he signed apud S.

Sancitishin Domini Nostrat Pii Divina Providental Papare IX. Epistola Encyclica. To all the patriarcha, primares, archibishops, bishops and other ordinaries of places having grace and communion with the Apostolic Sec, and to all faithful Ciristians.

Venerable brothers and beloved sons, health and apostolic benediction.

Moved not only by the grave calamities of the Church and of this century, but also by the necessity of imploring Divine and, we have never omitted in the time of our Pontificate to arouse the Christian people, in order that they might strive to appease the majesty of God and merit celestial elemency by noly habits of life, by works of penitence and by plous and dutiful continuance in prayer. To this end we have, with apostolic liberality, several times opened to the faithful the spiritual treasures of the indulgences in order that, anymated thereby to true penitence and purged by the sacrament of reconclination from the stains of sin, they might be able to approach the throne of grace with more confidence and be worthy of their prayers being benignantly received by God. This also, as at other times, we especially considered our duty to fulfil on the occasion of the Eumenical Vatican Council, in order that the very grave work undertaken for the benefit of the Universal Church might at the same time, by the prayers of the whole Church, be furthered in the sight of the Almighty; and although the celebration of the same Council remained suspended, through the calamities of the times, we never heless declared and mide known for the good of the autiful people that the indulgence to follow it in the form of a fuolee promulgible of the autiful people that the indulgence to follow it in the form of a fuolee promulgible of the continuing, behold the commencement of the seventy-filin year after the eighteenth century of the Christian erathe year, that is to say, which marks that s

What a pious and nony something are as the soul of the soulist most abundant ands of reconciliation and of grace. What a pious and nony something was seen in this our century when, the Jubilee of the year 1825 having been intimated by Leo XII. of biessed memory, our predecessor, this someon tervor that the said Pontill could rejoide in having seen during the whole course of the year a never interrupted concourse of pictins in this city, and through which was marvellously manniested the spiendor of religion, piety faith, love the spiendor of religion, piety faith, love and through which was marvellously manniested the spiendor of religion, piety faith, love and condition, and the condition of civil and sacred chings, as to permit us happily to celevarie, according to the ancient rites and customs which pure ideas used to observe, that solemnity of the great Jabilee, which occurring as it did in the year 1860, of this century, it was necessary to omit because of the mourtain circumstances of the times! But those grave causes which at that their impeded as irom intimating the Jubilee, so lar from naving ceased, have instead—dod so permitting it—increased daily. Nevertheless, observing the surface of the continuous of the continuous continuous and the propagate the poisso of impicty; so many scandars which prospate the poisso of impicty; so many scandars which prospate the poisso of impicty; so many scandars which ends to destroy all sense of rectinuous docurrers of the continuous daily distinct of the prospate the poisso of impicty; so many scandars which ends of the prospect of the said and increased, that the railro from driving and the inflamous emancipation from driving and underly distinct of prayer be ionemited and increased, that the railro from driving and the said the said to the prospect of the continuous of the prospect of the continuous of t

To von, finally, all ye sons of the Catholic Church, we direct our discourse, and you, each and all, we exhort with paternal affection so to make use of this opportunity of the Jubilee to obtain pardon as the sincere pursuit of your salvation requires of you. If at all times it is necessary—now more especially is it so—most beloved sons, to cleanse the conscience from dead works, to offer the sacrifices of righteousness, to bring forth irults meet for repentance and to sow in tears that you may reap in joy. The Divine Majesty sufficiently shows what He requires from us, while now, for a long time, through our depravity, we are laboring under Hs threatenings and under the inspiration of the spirit of His anger. In truth, "Men are accustomed when they are suffering ancier a too hard necessity to send ambassators to neighboring nations to receive some and. Maxim Torin, hou, xc.) But do ye caleful hear the spostolic voice because we are amoassadors of Christ. Ye woo labor and are heavy laden and who, departing from the path of salvation, are oppressed by the yoke of depraved desires and by the slavery of the devil, do not despise the riches of the goodness and patience and long suffering of God, and while there is operfee out before you so easy and broad a way for the obtaining of pardon, do not, by your obsunacy, render you selves inexcusable before the Divine Judge, and lay up for yourseives a treasure of wealth in the day of wealth in the day omen of all grace and neaven gut of the abospolic benegiction which, from our inmost heart,

THE COLLEGE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

The examination review at the College of the City of New York concluded yesterday. this examination is a test for ascertaining the proficiency of students it is also a review of the work done during last term, thus enabling them to refresh their knowledge. It occupies two weeks, to refresh their knowledge. Hoccupies two weeks, and its results will be carried over to the results of the Jane examination, and with them will determine whether a man is prepared for promotion in class. There has recently been quite an excitement at the college over the "suspension" of several members of the senior class. It seems that the members of that class have started a new periodical, called the Collegian, and in the first issue of this journal they libelled, as the Faculty have judged, certain of their instructors, and for this offence a vacation has been granted them to rest after their labors and to reflect on the folly of rousing a sleeping hon. The class held a grand indication meeting, but all their indignation went for naught.

THE SPANISH COUP.

King Alfonso's Effort for the Restoration of the Throne.

The Student of Sandhurst and His Friends in the Intrigue.

A Perfect Surprise, but Without Bismarck.

I have been taking a good deal of interest in the Alfonsist organization for some time past, and am now thus far on my way toward Spain to be present on the arrival of the new King. The more one learns of the matter the more one stands be wildered, both as to the present and the future. of the drams are two fat old women, seen in very opposite conditions. About three weeks ago I went to Sandhurst, a country village near Aldershot, deriving its only prominence from having in its vicinity the Staff College and the Royal Military Academy. At the latter seminary the Prince of the Asturias was a student. I found his residence on the "Terrace," a tucked up, moderate sized barrack-room kind of a house, suca as would be dear at $250 in New York, with a porch tacked on to the side, through the roof of which the water dripped.

When I rang the bell it was replied to by an elderly woman—perhaps she would call herself middle aged—of considerable corpulence and general wheeziness. "Was the Prince at home ?" I asked. "No," was the laconic response. "Was Colonel Velasco, his Governor, there?" "No." The lat old woman was the only inhabitant of the square box, and she was the housekeeper of the establishment. She did not know anything, not even where her consuments were to be found, tioning that I learned from her that she was in the habit of sending all letters which came to the nouse at Sandhurst to the care of a geutleman residing in Harley street. This was the old woman of what may be called the Alfonsist eclipse-a stupid English housekeeper, without the idea of a political intrigue in that gelatinous carcass of hers, and with no soul above kitchen stuff and per-

A MORE FAVORABLE CONDITION. Stout elderly female No. 2 I visited two days ago under different conditions. A little way along the Rue de le Roi du Rome, in Paris, there stands, retired from the street, a somewhat fantastically constructed edifice, built by a now subsided Polish Count, and known from his name as the Hotel Bazilewski. It is now the residence of Isabella, the ex-Queen of Spain. To that residence I came, bearing influential introductions, and was after some delay admitted to the presence of the great lady to whose son has come such a flash of good better, comparatively uncourn as she was. It is not en regle to portray literally the lineaments and characteristics of a great lady like this; yet somehow I thought, as I set by her, of Lord Rochester's wife in "Jane Eyre," with a strong infusion of bigored piety thrown in. "Can any good thing come out of such a Nazareth as this?" was one's seif-questioning. But it seemed to me that although she was here in her own house she was greatly ignored by the party. The lobby was full of men discussing and projecting schemes; on the staircase groups in-
